

How I would get kids in Santa Fe including my friends hooked on books

This is how I would get every kid in Santa Fe including my friends hooked on books. I would tell my friends to tell their friends to tell their parents so my friends and their friends can get hooked on books. Their parents could tell other parents and those parents would tell their kids and their kids would tell their friends and it would go on and on and on. Another way I would get kids and my friends hooked on books is I would make a reading club. When kids see my reading club, they will want to make reading clubs of their own.

Also I can write a cool play and all the students at my school would have to read along while my friends and I act it out. I would also make reading groups and the students would have to decide if they want to join my group or make one of their own. I would also write a book and copy it for every student at my school so students will have no excuses for not reading!! I would have a competition at school with a cool prize! The competition would be "Which class can read the most books (along with a book report for every book they read) in one month" The class that reads the most will win a Pizza and Banana Split Party!!

Another way I would get kids hooked on books I would have reading buddies for kids who are having a hard time with reading. I would encourage parents to encourage their kids to read on a daily basis, especially in the summer!! Every summer I would have a 2 week summer camp free of charge for students, which would include lots of reading and role playing for plays, which we would perform for the community, along with punch, cookies and lots of other fun activities!!

Every other Saturday I would invite my friends over my house for a “Reading Buddy Party” which means each friend would have to bring a buddy along with them for lots of Reading from the variety of books I have in my closet and on my kindle as well as lots of games and prizes!! I would make cool flyers and signs to put up around Santa Fe that say “ KIDS can you take your eyes off your video games and swap your video game for a book and glue your eyes to your book as if it were your video game, for 20 minutes each day this summer? I didn’t think so... Try it... I DARE you... no I DOUBLE DARE you...!!!”

So basically “This is how I would get my friends and every kid in Santa Fe hooked on Books!!
